Spirit week

Once again, to start off the beginning of a terrific year, the ever popular "Spirit Week" took place. Grade ten's received the harsh and typical treatment from Seniors: "FROSH 'EM!"

The week was jam-packed with activities. To start off the first noon hour, the event that was not well received by the Grade ten's was the pledge of allegiance to Harry Ainlay and the promise to respect, honor, and never disobey the Senior.

On the 9th of September, the "Musical Chairs" event took place. Excited Ainlayites fell head over heels, became pogo sticks and crawled on their bellies in tune to the music.

The talkfest passed by like a lost spirit on the third noon hour. Willing participants joined in the mouthstuffing contest and babbled into the microphone. Whatever they were trying to say sounded like a harassed teacher who just had four fillings.

The fourth noon hour featured a pie eating contest. Spirited Ainlayites joined in a gooey contest which was great fun and lots of laughs. We know that the losers didn't really lose - they gained five pounds. The Houseleague Council led the way for Friday's noon hour by sponsoring the annual obstacle race. The week tapered off with "Millions" performing at Ainlay's first dance of the 80/81 year.

Halloween

The S.U. planned a great week for Ainlayites with several Halloween activities. It hit off on Monday with the movie "Frankenstein's Daughter" showing in the theatre. Popcorn was sold by the Grad Council to moviegoers looking for a chance to scream their buns off.

The second noon hour featured the blind-folded jousts in the Rotunda. The main event was the vigorous fight between Mr. Stolee and Mr. Klapstein. Ainlayites ranted and booed them on. The annual pumpkin carving contest and the bobbing for apples event took place on the third noon hour. Other events that were well received were the mummy wrapping contest and the sponge throwing contest which was set up by the Grad Council. Mr. Hinz was a definite bulls-eye in this event.

On Thursday, the opening of the Haunted House took place. Several Ainlayites felt their way out in the dark while slipping and sliding on all the "gook." The last noon hour featured the Costume Contest where characters of all types entered. One of the most popular costumes was the Pregnant Nun. Kool-Aid was available for all those who felt like flushing it down their throat after eating tacos with hot pepper sauce. The week was rounded up with Legend performing that night.

Christmas week

Christmas at Ainlay was as spirited as ever. The events began on Monday with the breaking of the Pinata. Once it was broken, goodies and one dollar bills spilled out and were picked up by weight watchers and money mongrels nearby. Tuesday, the ever popular "pictures" with Santa were taken. However, there was a special visitor who decided to accompany Santa. None other, but Mrs. Claus!!!

The ISCF joined the merrymaking by singing Christmas carols on the third noon hour. Whoever said "The police always win" sure better think about it, because the Senior Girls Basketball team whipped the Edmonton Policewomen in the gym at noon hour.

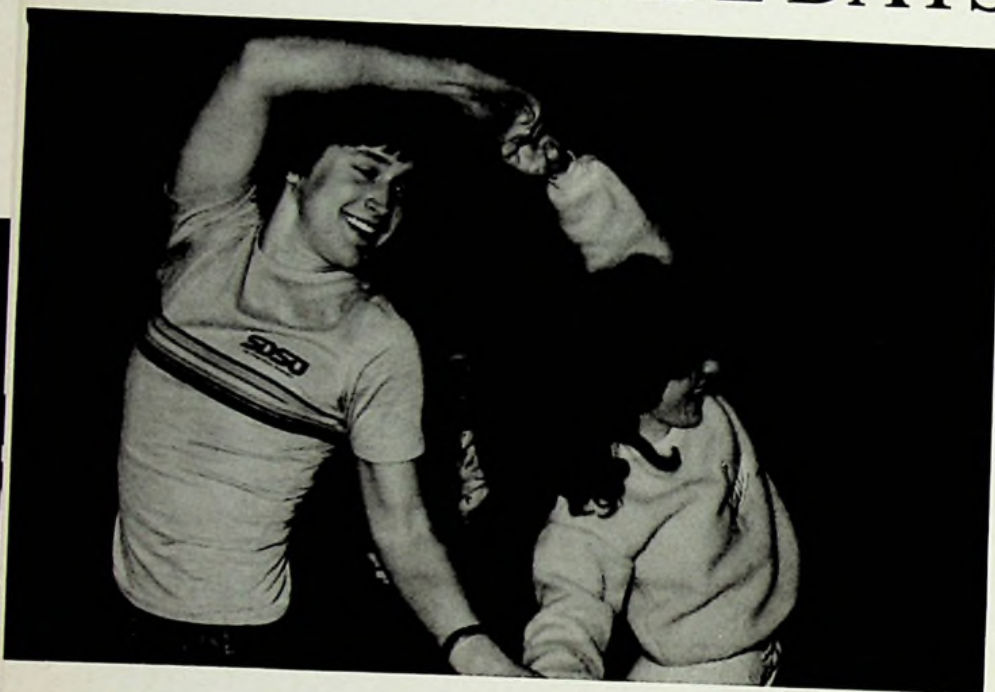

Thursday was the day the dentists received their best business. The taffy pull event was hosted in the rotunda by the S.U. Several Ainlayites ended up with sticky fingers and jaws that felt like a ton of lead.

The annual Pancake breakfast was held on Friday. Several Ainlayites turned out for this event, but the S.U. expected a larger turnout. Other events included the class decorating contest, which was won by Mr. Rohlrack's class. As school drew to a close for the Christmas holidays, the festive spirit lingered on as enthusiastic carollers sang throughout the empty classrooms.

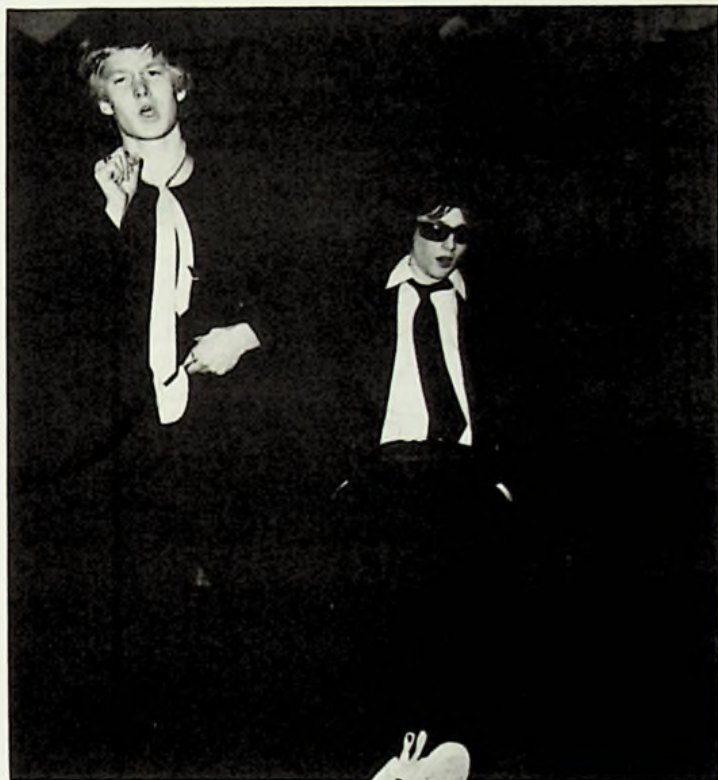

DECADE DAYS

DECADE DAYS

Four styles of music were highlighted in this year's Decade Days and were introduced at Monday's lunch hour by way of a "S.U. Fashion Show." Each day's theme was illustrated by a particular costume.

On Tuesday, many activities such as the Charleston lessons, the Knee Cap Marathon, Red Square Scare, and Assassin were hosted. Several Ainlayites bounced around on sore knees in an attempt to win two Billy Joel tickets.

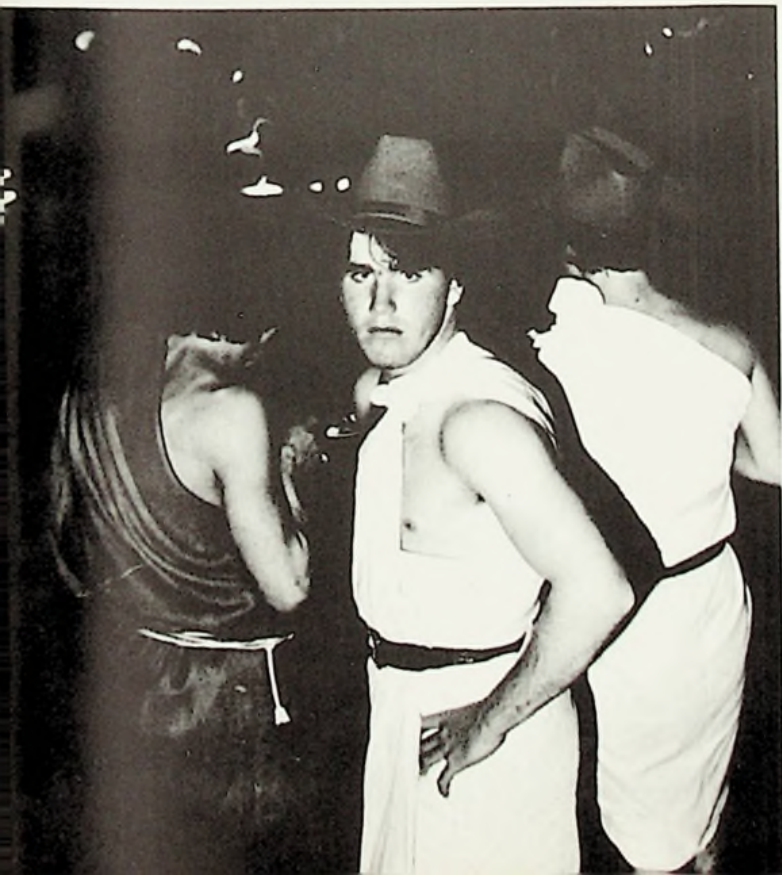

Bobby sockers, gum poppers, and teeny-boppers took over Ainlay on Wednesday. The bubble-blowing, hoola-hoop, and jiving contests were hosted for several slick greasers in the rotunda.

Thursday was the day Ainlayites revolted against the Administration in a salute to the 60's. Many participants joined the Name that Tune contest in the rotunda.

Safety-pin pierced punkers great and small added to the fun on Punk Day. At noon hour, several Ainlayites crammed into the theatre to watch the Air Guitar contest. To wrap up an exciting week, Jensen Interceptor performed that night.

NAIAD WEEK

The last event of the year worth dedicating an entire week to was Naiad Week. This year's S.U. organization involved a collection of Superteams, with each team competing in a week's activities which included barrels of laughs and fun. Wednesday's noon hour featured a car push with the Superteams demonstrating their muscular ability. Football players were in popular demand for this event. An obstacle course and a trike drag dominated the rest of the noon hour.

Toga-wearers flaunted their gorgeous bodies during the fourth noon hour. A chariot race, similar to a car rally, involved Togaser's in a race against time for several Ainlay memorabilia. Sticky, squashed grapes, hidden in several remote corners of the rotunda, were the hidden treasures for several Ainlayites.

The last noon hour featured the Human Pyramid Decorating contest. Several decorations were displayed such as the popular butterscotch sundae and the Barnum and Bailey zoo. After school events included a BBQ, Earthball, Tennis, Greased Watermelon and many more. The A.S.I. Rock and Roll Show wrapped up an exciting week by performing that night.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

When I was asked by the Yearbook to prepare the President's Message, I was filled with both anticipation and apprehension. I wanted to say something different from past messages, something relevant, and I really didn't want to do a rehashing of all the Student Union's successes over the past year, but, hmmm.

(scratch head and peer into empty space)

For the first time since its opening (at least to my knowledge), Harry Ainlay had an underground paper. I would like to tip my hat to the members of the Iceberg and the Radical Liberation Movement because if we, the S.U., don't have someone like them we become complacent. They also confirmed my hopes that some of the students out there cared enough about what we were doing to make some noise. The Iceberg and the RLM generated some genuine interest in school affairs and I hoped to channel that interest in a positive direction.

(more scratching and peering - eventual succumbance (!) to . . .)

We did some different things as an Executive this year. True to the promise of several members, we obtained a representative on Faculty Council. We were the driving force for the formation of a new interschool council. We directed more of our attention towards the junior high schools to inform them of the opportunities they had in high school. And, contrary to public rumor, in addition to the "bombs" we actually had some successful activities.

(scratching and peering, subsection III)

I guess what I'd really like to leave behind as a testimonial are the following two words: defy mediocrity. Don't succumb to the lowest common-denominator syndrome. To the graduates, whether you choose to attend a post-secondary institution or not, grab hold of your future and run with it. To the returnees, these three years of high school will be everything you make of them - take advantage of them. In the words of Helen Keller, speaking for me to everyone, "life is either a daring adventure, or nothing."

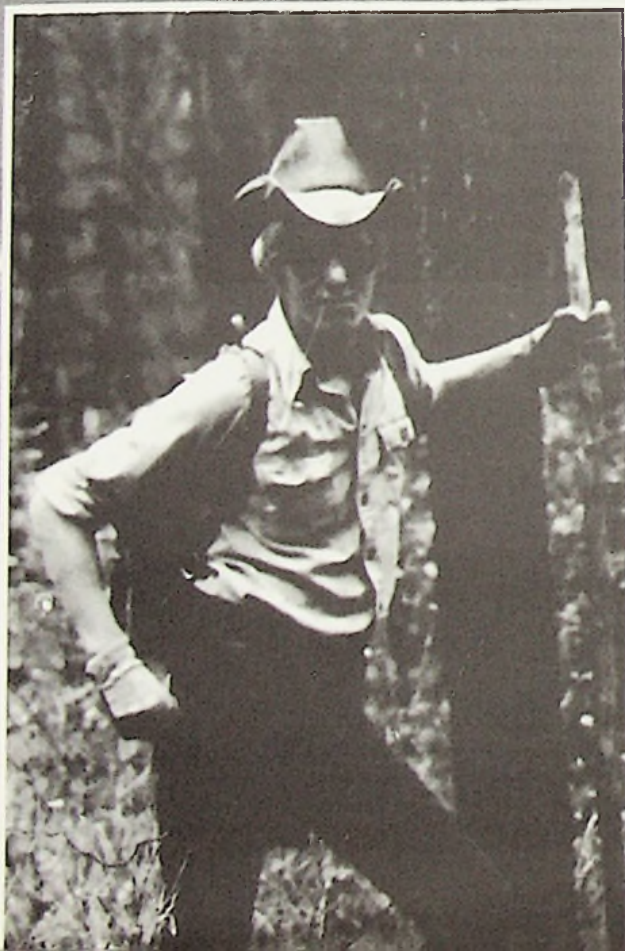

(windy suspiration of forced breath)

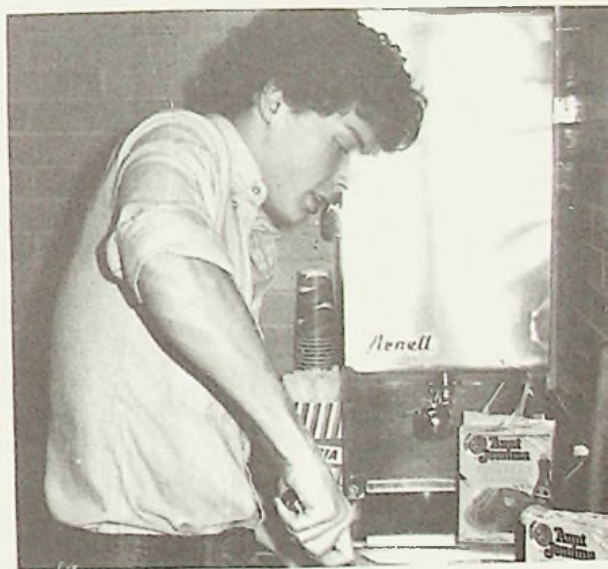

Finally, to anyone who had the misfortune of knowing me personally and for some unfathomable reason wishes to continue the relationship, I offer the following quote as both a remembrance and a guideline for the future. "Anything you need done today, forget it! I haven't finished last week yet." Thank you for the past year and the very best of luck in your future.

(cap pen and place on table)

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

In bad weather, when there are heavy fogs and storms at sea, the navigator is obliged to take his bearings frequently to know where he is. If he doesn't do this, he cannot intelligently direct his course, and is liable to wreck his ship by running into hidden rocks.

Every man is the navigator of a life ship, and if he doesn't early form the habit of taking his bearings, to find out where he is and where he is going, he may in middle life, find his ship stranded on the rock of failure. If you would save yourself from shipwreck, take your bearings frequently.

It is our hope that we, at Harry Ainlay, have helped to provide you with the "navigating" skills so necessary to life. We do wish you well in all your endeavours.

JOININIC

TITAN TRADITION

It was a year of . . . snapping, cropping, "lay-outing," typing, copying, stamping and ultimately mailing after the deadline - never before. If you haven't noticed, our theme is primarily words ending in "ing," and of course the Greek artwork on our cover and divider pages. There was a lot of work put into this book - long hours in our stuffy cramped office, the photo-lab, darkroom and David Buffel's long hard nights doing dots. As this was a rebuilding year for the yearbook staff in that only five of us are old die-hards from last year and/or the year before, we feel it was a good combination of experience to put together; new fresh ideas with a dash of "tradition." As usual we missed most of our deadlines but most importantly not our final one. Those missed deadlines could be attributed to anything from lack of cooperation to prolonged ice cube fights after school. (We really should get rid of the fridge!). As co-editors, it has been a rewarding 3 years in that we have seen 3 of the best high school yearbooks in the city and have been an integral part of each of them. We only hope that we have set a standard that can be built upon and made higher. Once the challenge is gone - so is the high quality.

GENIES EN HERBE

Genies en Herbe (Budding Geniuses) is the French equivalent of Reach for the Top. This year's team, Harry Ainlay's third, won their first match against Saint Paul. Unfortunately, they were eliminated in the next round after running into some very stiff competition.

The team would like to thank the staff for their support and a special thanks goes to Mr. Dyck for his help.

GERMAN

The German Club which is sponsored by Dr. Juthner, met every week to watch German films, read books, listen to German music and learn about German traditions and customs. The club all went out for supper this year at a German restaurant where they could really experience a German tradition. All in all, it was a fun year.

Back Row L to R: Andrea Molnar, Carla Buhlmann, Colleen Palko, Cynthia Meade.

GRAD COUNCIL

Grad Council worked tirelessly since October with Fund Raising and organizing the Grad Ceremonies. Grad Council ran the coat check and concession of the SU dances as well as serving strawberry shortcake and refreshments at the Meet the Teacher Nights. All the funds raised went towards paying the costs of Graduation.

All of the Grad Council and the Advisors; Mr. Hinz, Ms. LaFleur and Mrs. Fletcher take pride in our work this year. We wish everyone the best in the coming years.

AWARDS BOARD

The Awards Board, which met every Tuesday, was responsible for Ainlay's Annual Awards Ceremony. Early in the year this small group of students decided upon such things as the program cover, pins, crests, stage decorations, and changes to be made in our constitution. Later, towards the end of the year, the work became increasingly hectic as there was Curricular Award averages to calculate, determining various other award winners, planning the program and finally running the actual ceremony at the Jubilee Auditorium. The ceremony, as always, was a success and many thanks are given to the students and our staff advisors who devoted much of their spare time.

HOUSE LEAGUES

The council this year was small. Most of the work was centered around the planning of the year's program as well as special events such as The Penny Carnival, Obstacle Race, and Splash Dive. The latter part of the year was spent on preparation for the Sports Banquet. It was held at the Derrick Golf Club on May 14th this year and was a tremendous success.

SIMULATION GAMES

The Simulation Games Club met twice a week for fun filled activities. The club played simulation games consisting of war strategy, battles, combats and other simulation games.

SCIENCE

The Science Club kept a low profile this year. Numerous labs were organized for interested members, notably the silver extraction lab. Films on topics ranging from noise pollution to computers to the plastics industry were shown. During the year, we had two field trips. The astronomy field trip caught the only snowy day of the month but the trip to the Chemistry Faculty of the U of A was extremely interesting. Special thanks go to Dr. Falk for his continued commitment to the Science Club.

MATH AND COMPUTER

Last summer the math department purchased 4 microcomputers. In October, the computer club was formed, and interest was overwhelming. Students appeared regularly every day: morning, lunch and after school. With club dues and an S.U. grant, we purchased several books and computer programs for the use of club members. Members wrote many useful and entertaining programs, ranging from Math 30 homework helpers to a myriad of gambling and arcade type games. In the math club, there was a Harry Ainlay team in the Alberta math contest. The team consisting of Dean Roehl, David Mok, and Heather Konrad got third place. In Alberta High School Mathematics Prize Examination, Phong Huynh placed third and Dean Roehl placed fourteenth. Congratulations!

RADIO

The Radio Club began in September and functioned well under the leadership of President Hans Beckers until complaints of noise pollution and poor taste began to pour in. This caused its subsequent shutdown in December. However, after the necessary changes were made, the hallways came alive in January with the sounds of punk, new wave, heavy metal, hard rock, big band, etc. You name it, they played it. The members would like to thank Mr. Stolee, the club advisor, for his assistance.

OLYMPUS

The Olympus is an annual publication of students' poems, personal essays, stories and plays, as well as artwork. The club met every Tuesday at noon. For several weeks each member acted as a public relations person making posters and urging students and English teachers to pass the good word.

Trophies were awarded to winners this year in place of the cash prizes that had been awarded in previous years. After the winners were announced, the staff members transformed themselves into editors, discussing, choosing and cutting their way through the accumulated manuscripts. Following the massive editing job, the chosen pictures were sent to press, resulting in the production of a most interesting collection of student works.

"THE CONTEST REALLY FLOPPED."

THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS...

Mike Evans is entering his second term on the Students' Union. Last year he was Treasurer, while this year he serves as President. As this is the last Titanic before the Student Union election in May, we all this would be an appropriate opportunity to interview him and find out his feelings, opinions, and suggestions for the Students' Union.

"Titanic: how would you evaluate the success of this year's Students' Union?"

"I think that depends on how you define the year. In terms of the Students' Union, it was a success because we were able to get a lot of things done. I would like to see the Students' Union continue to be successful in the future."

"What are the most important things that the Students' Union should be doing?"

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Harry Ainlay's 4,000 light bulbs have been replaced with energy saving compact fluorescent bulbs. The change was made by an old man in a school basement meeting March 2nd. Staff and students gathered to experience the excitement of lighting and the results. The meeting indicated that the new lights were much brighter than the old ones, as reported by last year's Titanic about a significant difference between the two forms of lighting.

"Mike: I think sometimes I'd like to see a revival of the student activist period because then everybody seemed to care about their education."

END OF LINE

COP-OUT

A request for a resource officer to be stationed in Harry Ainlay has been turned down by the Edmonton Police Department. Mr. Pebrnya made the request as the school has been withdrawn from the regular beat of police officers and it was felt that police contact should be maintained.

Two years ago, the school was offered a resource officer but the offer was refused as beat officers were doing an adequate job. Now, however, the absence of beat and resource officers means that cops will come to Ainlay only when called, with the resulting police response time. Officers will have a better chance of getting away than before.

Mr. Pebrnya will probably place another resource officer request next year, but budget constraints will most likely cause the police to refuse again.

TITANIC

Once again, the Titanic proved to be a seaworthy organization; however, it wasn't without a struggle. Though the numerous staff changes were a challenge, the Titanic successfully informed, criticized, advised and entertained the structure of Ainlay.

The year got off with much controversy as the Titanic was pulled into the prolonged 'Iceberg Scandal.' In any case, by the time we got into the swing of things, Ainlay's students had been treated to such delicacies as our Vantage Points page, our Titanic Poll, S.U. Report, Club Reviews and Music Reviews. We tried to cover anything which we thought would go over well with our readers.

Finally, we would like to extend a sincere thank you to Mr. Miller, our staff sponsor, for providing us with his time, patience and cooperation.

I.S.C.F.

The ISCF met every Wednesday with a wide variety of things to do. Their interests weren't only for Christians. They discussed such issues as abortion, euthanasia, sex, the occult, and the list goes on. The Ski-Mania Ski trip was the most successful event this year; along with IVCF sponsored camps. Pioneer camps were chalk full of events such as white-water rafting, horseback riding, and rapelling. This past year they had such celebrities as Eskimo's Stu Lang, Dan Kem, and Danny Buggs. Everyone will remember Bernie Smith as well. They had everything from films, and speakers to bible studies. ISCF is an organization for everyone's enjoyment based on the love of Jesus Christ.

DEBATING

As you can see, the Debating Club was quite small this year. However, its accomplishments have not been correspondingly small. We hosted two tournaments this year: the 8th Annual Harry Ainlay Parliamentary Impromptu and the 1981 Edmonton Regional Championships. Other than that, Ainlay fielded competitors in 11 events, including the Provincial Championships of both Debate and Speech. Some tournaments were held at such far-flung places as Vancouver, Calgary, Red Deer and Grande Prairie. It has been a successful year and we extend our thanks to Mr. Fahlman and Ms. Becker as well as to Mr. Bolster for his gastronomic cooperation.

CERAMICS

The ceramics club started in February this year. It is composed of a small number of Art Students who are interested in pottery. The club dealt mainly with the improvement and craftsmanship of techniques already learned. Wheel work, glazing and slipping kept everyone busy and entertained.

PLACED BY LAURA HOLLAND

1. Kathy Takach; 2. Cindy Lack; 3. and 4. David Buffel.

The Sterling Silver-man was riding a strong white horse with a steady Gallop. In his hand he carried a long shiny Lantz, the point poised towards the sky. He had, also, by his side, a pistol in his Holzer. He was on his way from Somerville to Rosborough. Rosborough was well-known for its Primroses as it was Lafleur chosen by the king.

He had been exiled from Somerville as he had been a Stolee-pigeon for another country. He had to get away before the Hackman did away with him at the Niblock. In his confusion, he fled to Rosborough to live with his Kunkel. He felt that there everything would peachy Keehn.

As the Silver-man rode up to his Kunkel's farm, he had to pass through a Forst. In this Forst were a number of huge spider Webbs and all kinds of Busbys. These Busbys' nests would Rohrlack lions when anyone went by.

Beyond the Forst was a Sande beach surrounding a Poole that was Rippeling in the wind. The Silver-man noticed that this Poole Wozimirsky and not worthy of a drink of water. Because he wasn't paying attention, the horse tripped over a Hunka stone and the Silver-man started Fahlman to the Bottomley of the hill. Even though it was his Falk, he blamed the horse as he was in a considerable amount of Payne.

He hauled himself back onto his horse and finally reached his Kunkel's Bjarnson. His Kunkel could be seen Woloshyn Hess Silk clothes in Agrell (a well). It was a real Sprysak to his Kunkel as he had arrived quite unexpectedly. They greeted one another warmly and changed into some Tougas which would be cooler and more comfortable.

About an hour Latta one of the young maidens, a widow, And-er-son Mathew, who lived on the neighbouring farm, came by to borrow some Knudsen (nuts and) Currie. When the Silver-man and the widowed young maiden saw one another, it was love at first sight. She asked the Silver-man's Kunkel to babysit Mathew and the Silverman and she, ran hand in hand towards the Forst. They rested briefly on the Sande beach by the Rippeling Poole. Here they sat down and he motioned to hold her. His many Hinz were very obvious to her so she puckered her Lippa and gave him a Kisilevich. At this point he made a proposal of marriage of which she eagerly accepted.

Two days Latta the Silver-man and the young maiden were filling the Roles of husband and wife. They went on to live happily ever after in Rosborough.

They faired exceptionally well at the Provincials with a first place finish in Fort McMurray. This strong, well-coached team proved to be a super representative of our school.

When the going gets tough
 The TITANS get going.
 When the TITANS get going,
 The others get lapped!!

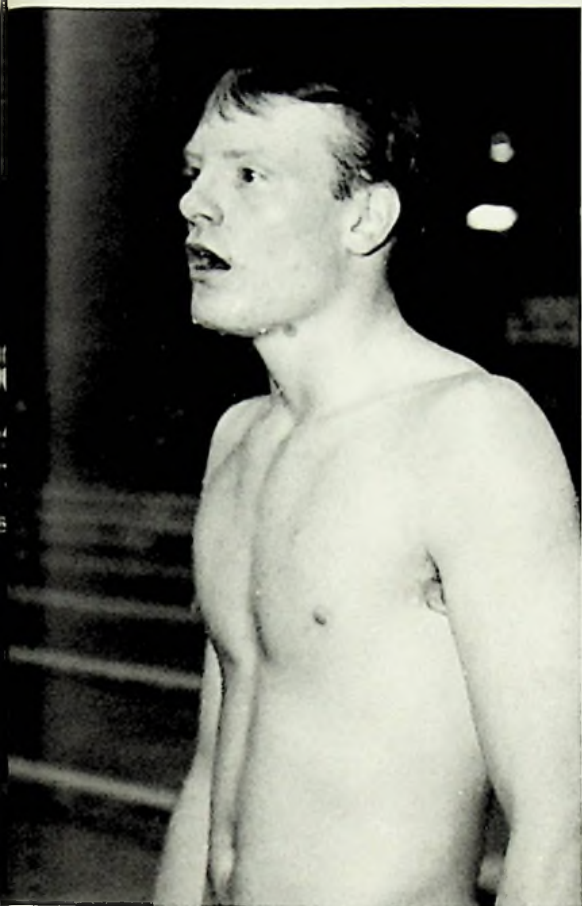

This season proved most fruitful for our swimming powerhouse. With a strong group of club swimmers, much improved veterans and competent rookies, the Titans were able to regain the City Championship. Beyond the City's the season continued for a 6th month as St. Georges, a Vancouver private school, came to the 1st Annual Edmonton High School Invitational hosted by Harry Ainlay.

This most impressive team owes much credit to its coach, Mr. B. Holzer who has brought 5 championships home during his reign as coach. A special thanks goes to Ms. Mowatt who assisted at meets and afternoon workouts.

SWIMMING

WATER POLO

Water Polo returned to Harry Ainlay this season after taking a one year breather; however an obvious lack of experience left the Titans with a perfect record . . . 0 wins and 8 losses. Despite this not so impressive record, team spirit carried the team through the season. It had been said that of all the teams in the league, Ainlay was one that went out 110% (sort of like the Winnipeg Jets)!

Girls were given the opportunity to play in the league this season and proved their worth in their first year. They showed that they can play just as well or in some cases better than the guys.

Twelve of the eighteen players on the team will be returning next year and with this in mind should fair considerably better next season.

With Nanaimo and Cardston in the final, everyone was given a thrilling championship game. The Tri-Prov. While their record consisted of an unbreakable streak of ties and 2 wins, they fought their way to the playoffs and on a bleak rainy day they unfortunately lost to Austin O'Brien in the quarter-finals. They must be congratulated for their effort.

JUNIOR BOYS SOCCER

For the first time, the soccer league split into two sections, the premier division and the city division. After a qualifying round, the junior Titans made it to the Premier Division and wound up the season in fourth place. In the playoffs, they were defeated in the first round by Victoria Composite. GRADUATING

CLASS HISTORIANS

... Good morning boys and girls. Isn't it a lovely day in the neighborhood? Today we have a special treat for you. We're going to learn some history - the history of the class of 1981 at Harry Ainlay. Here, with the storybook is Peter Blackwell and Jeff May. Now, who the heck stole my sneakers?

P: Time has really flown for most of us and it seems like just last year we were stepping out of junior high into high school.

J: Harry Ainlay seemed like a big building.

P: We were sure put in our place by the size of it all.

J: Especially by the size of the Grade 12's - even more so when they had a can of shaving cream in their hands. All things considered, we got accustomed quickly.

P: Especially to skipping classes, going to the bookstore, high -

J: Don't forget classes, assignments and homework!

P: High school parties. Which always seemed to be followed by the morning after.

P and J: Plop, Plop, Fizz, Fizz.

J: And we finally had dances that weren't at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

P: I never knew that guys could actually dance ... and with girls yet!

J: Our book says that "our learning capacity was inhibited because of our lack of windows at Harry Ainlay."

P: We finally had an excuse for the marks we were getting!

J: So they gave us full spectrum lighting and we had an innovation at Ainlay:

P and J: Blue classrooms!

P: We were also affected by events in the world around us.

J: Quebec wanted to separate.

P: Joe Clark was our Prime Minister.

J: Joe Who?

P: How soon we forget.

J: On a more serious note, all of Ainlay's girls were saddened to hear that Donny Osmond was married. And in Chapter One on t.v., we watched "Mork and Mindy."

P: Nanoo, Nanoo!

J: And in this same year, we realized that our teachers were not keepers of a zoo, but human beings we could respect. Although there were those times that we couldn't help but hate them for those essays, exams, assignments and homework they would give us; we thought they were really neat. They would always have a joke for us when we were falling asleep on our desks or always a dull word when we were wide awake. We will always remember our teachers; they gave us good and bad times. To all of Ainlay's faculty ... Thank You.

P: After Grade 10 was over, we all got summer jobs and worked our butts off for three dollars an hour. In September, we came back to Ainlay for Grade 11.

J: Which brings us to Chapter Two in the book of the Class of 1981.

P: In Grade 11, the pressure was off; we could let loose and fly.

J: Our biggest challenge was to avoid those absence notes. You know, those orange forms that would just happen to pop into your mailbox from time to time.

P: We also discovered school activities.

J: Basketball games and acting strange became old hat to us.

P: We lost our voices at the games, but won recognition on the front cover of the "Edmonton Sun," punking out.

J: Mr. Rebryna came into the limelight with the - pardon the pun - garbage questionnaire.

P: The policy soon came into effect and many people still consider it ...

J: Don't say it, Peter! ... Outside of Harry Ainlay in Chapter Two, Edmonton celebrated its 75th birthday and then Alberta did the same.

P: We survived the droughts of both beer strikes.

J: But we had to drink American beer.

P: In Grade 11, we went to the movies to see "Star Wars" and "Kramer vs. Kramer."

J: We were still watching our t.v.'s, this time it was ...

P: Live from New York, It's Saturday Night!

J: Oh yes, Grade 11 was a great time!

P: But it didn't last long with Grade 12 just around the corner.

J: As we turn to the newly written Chapter Three, school now becomes serious. We found ourselves studying and studying.

P: Some of us got serious about Grade 12 in a different way. Serious problems came up, like who to take to the weekend bash or more importantly who to take to Grad.

J: But Peter, we finally learned the values of our Grade 12 subjects; English 30 and Shakespeare, Math 30 and Probability,

Social 30 and -

Peter Blackwell and Jeff May

P: Biology 30 and the human body, anatomy by Braille.

J: And we were sent on the great search!

P: The quest for a roll of toilet paper.

J: We finally named the Bookstore - The Bookstore!

P: School assignments changed from 3 page autobiographies in English 10 to 10 page essays on "Existentialism and How It Affects Society" in English 30.

J: And thanks to a Grade 11 exhibitionist, we were treated to a strip show in the Rotunda.

P: Our vocabulary changed from "Hey man, where's the party?" to "Care to join me for a drink at the cabaret, old chum."

J: Even though we were busy with school work, we were still concerned with world events.

P: The west was insulted with Petro-Can.

J: We saw the taking of the American Hostages which led to the appearance of yellow ribbons.

P: John Diefenbaker and John Lennon died - but Margaret got what she wanted!

J: With our sophisticated attitudes in Grade 12 we changed our attire from blue jeans and t-shirts to t-shirts and blue jeans.

P: We still watched that t.v. This time we got intellectual and saw "Yan Can."

J: What the heck!

P: And we went back to the movies this time to see "The Empire Strikes Back" and "Ordinary People."

J: Our musical tastes were lost somewhere between "Turning Japanese" and AC/DC.

P: And, now that we are graduating, we look back on our three years and one major element is missing.

J: And that is our parents. Not the ones that nagged us to do our homework, nor the ones that told us not to stay up late on school nights because we'd be so dead tired the next day, but the ones that we needed for support when we needed them the most. Thanks Mom and Dad, even though we may not show it, we really do love you.

P: So thus ends the history of the class of 1981. The remaining pages are blank and are there to be written by you.

J: Wherever you do go Ainlay, don't forget your friends. For the good times you had with those friends should never be forgotten. For the day they are forgotten is the day some of your happiest moments will leave you.

P: And whatever the future does hold for you, the Class of '81, good luck and God bless.

J: So you've got my sneakers!

P: Good night Peter.

J: Good night Jeff.

P: Good night Harry Ainlay.

Ian Dinwoodie

After twelve years of being taught, we have just begun learning. The information we have memorized is only a small part of what we need to know. High school is important because it develops the parameters for future thinking, just as physics tries to establish general laws as the basis of the physical world. We are just beginning to transcend the cliches and the inflexibility of passive acceptance and develop our education. Ultimately, these impressed facts and generalities of school should be considered subservient to the greater truths they will help formulate. Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote, "... the chief end of men is to frame general propositions, and no general proposition is worth a damn. General propositions do not decide concrete cases. The decision will depend on a judgment or intuition more subtle than any articulate major premise."

Great men must deviate from the static atmosphere of acceptance. In the history of science, Copernicus suggested that the sun and not the earth was the center of the planets, in opposition to Church dogma. Galileo similarly broke with tradition with his theory of Relativity, and Max Planck formulated a law of quantum to explain otherwise mysterious behavior of light. Karl Marx, the Beatles, and John Maynard Keynes transformed their respective fields. Men such as these appreciate the venerated system of old, but through an essential flexibility in thought can create new systems that better explain known phenomena. They draw on their learning, but tear it down as well.

Questioning, largely absent in high school, is often considered frivolous. Socrates certainly did not contribute to the material well-being of mankind, and least of all his family. Ray Bradbury's FAHRENHEIT 451 addresses the issue of utility versus intellect.

VALEDICTORIAN

Bradbury creates in the book a pathetic society devoid of the color and the vitality of people with curiosity. The society seeks to eliminate the vitality of people with curiosity. The society seeks to eliminate questioning, but its members struggle inwardly against the tyranny of vegetable conformity. "Cram them full of non-cumbustible data," says one of Bradbury's characters, "chock them so damned full of 'facts' they feel stuffed, but absolutely 'brilliant' with information. Then they'll feel they're thinking, they'll get a sense of motion without moving."

Jobs that require specific technical training are attracting many students. They require regulated input, with only the facts of a complete education. The competition to operate cleverly within certain rules is overwhelming. The technocrat can be locked in a cell with inanimate and tedious, but nevertheless captivating subjects. He manipulates variables with practised dexterity under the rules of the trade, while the thinkers struggle with the basics. Alfred North Whitehead says of technical advances that "we are left with no expansion of wisdom, and greater need of it."

Ideally, training and academic curiosity should be united. But to do this requires an education beyond the facts. The limitations of high school are the limitations of all training. Augmenting it should be learning on all fronts, both worldly and academic. Fast cars and rock music should combine with computers and with Rousseau. The Renaissance approach is the most fruitful.

As graduates, we know only some facts. But we are beginning to go beyond information and the answers of high school. We must bridge the abyss between our schooling and our education.
